I understand how special and unique I am. I know I am a valued member of my classroom home, family home and wider school and local community. I respect others and understand we may have different opinions but that is okay.	I know that the past has already happened and the present is right now. I understand that memories are key to reflection and looking back fondly at times that have already happened - for both myself and my family members. Now I understand how special I am, I can now recognise the important roles of my wider family and my place in this special setting.	I understand the vital and important roles different people have in my local community. I know that people show good citizenship by being helpful, respectful and caring towards others. I know where key features are in the local environment - like my school and the difference between a town and countryside. I understand my role as a learner and how important it is in the local school and wider community that I am a responsible citizen.	I understand that people celebrate special times in different ways. I know that people have different beliefs and how important it is to be open minded. I know that sharing and caring helps make the world a happy place. I understand that people celebrate special times all over the World.	I know that living things need food, water and shelter to survive and that animals need the right habitat to flourish. I know that people care for animals and it is important to look after nature and our precious planet. I recognise my responsible role in this.	I understand that working in a team collaboratively can create brilliant results. I value others' ideas and can make contributions in discussions. I know that the process of plan, do, review is important when designing and making and that powerful learning comes from making mistakes.	Now that I know what living things need to flourish and survive, I can make links to plants and flora and fauna. I know my place in the local community and wider world and can spot changes and new life now Spring is here. I can see the movement and changes in my World from Autumn to Winter to Spring and know that summer is the next season in my future linking to my historical understanding.	Now I know so much about feelings and emotions and how to collaborate and work well with others and independently, I am curious as to whether the Big Bad Wolf is actually bad, or is he just lonely and needing food to survive in his habitat. I understand that I have and can use my voice as an orator and an author.	I understand that my actions have an impact and feel inspired by people from the past and present who make a positive difference to our World. I know that actions have consequences. I understand how landmarks and features help support local communities - like lighthouses keeping ships and crew safe.	I remember the features and qualities of my local area - Shaldon village and how it connects further to Teignmouth via one of the oldest bridges in the country. I can see now that our environment helps us link together and can also be very different like towns, villages and cities. I see how transport, roads and bridges help us make connections as well as people and how we communicate with each other.	I know that even the smallest creatures on our Earth help and support us and we must make sure we look after and give them the habitats they need to survive and flourish. I know that humans have an impact on the environment - like building on green places, and it is important to recreate the green spaces so mini beasts can survive.	Now that I understand my place in my family, school and local community - I know the importance of kindness and friendship and feel inspired by the people who have made and continue to make a difference to our precious planet and all living things. I can articulate with clarity how we can continue to nurture and look after our Earth through actions like recycling, using litter bins and being mindful when using electricity and water. I know I have the potential to make a difference and feel empowered and confident to be a positive, healthy and happy citizen and member of society.
