

Climate in Costa Rica

Did you know that Costa Rica is a hot and humid country?

Due to Costa Rica being close to the equator, the country only has two seasons. First of all, it rains for 2-3 hours in the wet season. About midday, the clouds start to form until precipitation occurs around 2PM. The precipitation is generally heavy but doesn't last too long.

From December to April, very little rain falls in Costa Rica. This is called the dry season. During this time, the vegetation is less lush.